

RELATIONSHIP DISCLOSURE

Purpose of this Document

This document contains important information about our relationship with you, our client. It contains information about us, the services we offer, the nature of your account and responsibilities we have to you. This client relationship disclosure is required by Canadian securities regulations under National Instrument 31-103.

This disclosure provides other meaningful information about things like investment considerations, conflicts of interest and fairness practices of Lee, Turner & Associates Inc. (LTA). It also discusses some of our responsibilities, and yours, with regard to the suitability of investment advice, our services, costs and other relevant information. It is meant to supplement the information you received in our Account Opening forms and Investment Management Agreement. Other important information you need to know will be found in your account statements, on our website and through other updates we provide from time to time.

Delivery of this Document

This document will be provided to you at the time of account opening. If there are significant changes to the information in this document, we will make every effort to provide you with updated information in a timely manner.

Our Services and Your Account

LTA is registered as a Portfolio Manager with the British Columbia Securities Commission. The individuals who advise and manage the accounts of our clients are registered as Advising Representatives with the British Columbia Securities Commission. Those registrations enable us to accept authority from our clients to manage their investment assets on a full “discretionary” basis. This means we can make investment decisions and execute trades on your behalf within the context of your specific client information, investment objectives and risk tolerance.

The primary service, and only account type, offered by LTA is the Separately Managed Account. With these accounts you give us authority to make and implement investment decisions for you within agreed parameters. Decisions made on your behalf will be made by our advising representatives, who are portfolio managers trained in investment analysis and portfolio construction and who will strive to construct and maintain a portfolio of investments that is consistent with your financial circumstances, investment objectives and tolerance for risk. Put another way, our advising representatives will strive to construct a portfolio that is suitable for you, based on the information that you have provided to them. For them to be successful, it is important that you ensure they have an accurate and up-to-date understanding of your financial circumstances, investment needs and objectives and tolerance for risk.

In formulating investment decisions for our clients our advising representatives monitor market and economic conditions and incorporate relevant information into their forecasts about future developments and expected returns. Forecasting is not an exact science in any area, but our advising representatives apply a disciplined and pro-active management style in an effort to make the best decisions they can. They will conduct regular reviews of our clients' portfolios and will adjust the composition of those portfolios when they believe that it would be in our clients' best interests to do so

LTA offers portfolio management services to its clients. It does not create investment products and it does not trade for clients in securities of connected or related parties.

Account Documentation

You will receive various documents in connection with your account. At the time of account opening, you will be asked you to provide detailed information about yourself, your financial circumstances and your investment goals. This information is an essential part of our obligation to know our client, and it will be recorded in our Client Information Form. We will give you a copy of that form after it has been completed and ask that you assist us in keeping the information in it up to date.

You can also expect to receive:

- An Account (Investment Management) Agreement
- This client Relationship Disclosure
- A Portfolio Objective and Profile document
- A Fee Schedule showing fees and how they are calculated

Investment Risks

There are risks that investors should consider in relation to every investment and every investment program. Among the most significant risks for investors to consider are:

- Selection of Advisers: It is important for investors to be diligent in selecting advisers with the knowledge, skill, integrity and registration to provide the services required.
- Security Selection: Individual investments can fluctuate in value, sometimes very significantly, as a result of decisions made by management, new competition, changing economic, legal or taxation environments, changing interest rates, changing commodity prices, changing consumer behavior, and many other factors.
- Concentration Risk: Portfolios that are concentrated in a small number of investments are generally more volatile than portfolios that are diversified across a number of different securities, asset classes, industries and geographic regions.
- Credit Risk: The risk of default by a debtor, and also the risk of a downgrade in the debtor's credit rating, can significantly impact the value of the issuer's securities.
- Default Risk: The risk that the issuer of a security will be unable to pay dividends, interest or principal that it has promised to investors.

- Exchange Rate Risks: The value of investments made in foreign countries, or denominated in foreign currencies, will be affected by changes in the value of the foreign currency in relation to the Canadian dollar.
- Liquidity Risk: Some investments can be more easily and quickly sold at a fair price than others. In some cases, there may be legal impediments to the resale of a security, or the market for the security may be very thin, making it difficult to sell the investment quickly and at a fair price. For some investments it can be difficult to predict if there will be a liquid market when the investor wants to sell.

Use of Leverage (Borrowed Money)

The act of borrowing money to invest is known as ‘leveraging’. Using borrowed money to finance the purchase of securities involves greater risk than a purchase using cash resources only.

If you borrow money to purchase securities, your responsibility to repay the loan and pay interest as required by its terms remains the same even if the value of the securities purchased declines. In addition, lenders are more likely to demand that borrowed funds be repaid when the value of the securities purchased (and the value of the lender’s collateral) has declined.

It is important that clients of LTA inform their advising representative if any or all of the money they are contributing to their account is borrowed money.

Conflicts of Interest and Related Parties

LTA has a fiduciary responsibility to its clients. We will at all times deal fairly, honestly and in good faith with our clients. When managing client portfolios under discretionary authority we will place the interest of our clients above personal and corporate interests.

We will make reasonable efforts to identify material conflicts between our interests and the interests of our clients and will respond to those conflicts appropriately by avoiding the conflict, properly managing the conflict and, where required, disclosing the conflict to our clients. If at any time we are in doubt as regards whether a conflict of interest arises from a contemplated action on your behalf, we will proceed only if there is an affirmative answer to the question: Will the result of the action be in your best interest?

LTA does not make investments for its clients in securities issued by entities that are ‘related’ or ‘connected’ to LTA, as those terms are defined in securities legislation. Neither LTA nor its advising representatives will, for their own accounts, buy securities from or sell securities to accounts that we manage for its clients. LTA and its advising representatives may from time to time trade for their own account in securities that are also held in client accounts, but will not do so at times or at prices that will prejudice the interests of its clients.

Your Costs and the Compensation We Receive

The compensation arrangement between you and us will be straightforward and transparent. You will pay us a fee, and one fee only, for our investment management services. We charge management fees that are based on the market value of the assets that we are managing for each client. These fees, expressed as a percentage of the value of assets under management, are set out in your Investment Management Agreement and will be charged to your account, in advance, on or about the first day of each calendar quarter (e.g. January 1st, April 1st, July 1st and October 1st) and will be based on an average of your portfolio's market value on the last day of each of the three preceding months.

Certain other indirect and incidental expenses may be charged to your account for specific services or transactions by the custodian of your funds. We do not participate in any of these custodial fees, they are separate and distinct from our fees.

Please see our Fee Schedule regarding management fees, transaction charges and other charges.

Commissions

LTA does not sell investment products and is not paid commissions or any other type of compensation related to our investment purchases on your behalf. We do not receive any rebates or monetary incentives from brokerage firms that we use to execute your securities transactions.

Statements of Account

Statements of account are sent to LTA's clients by the account custodians either monthly or quarterly. The statements will include detailed information, including:

- the name, quantity and price of any securities purchased or sold for your account;
- the settlement date of any transactions made for your account;
- the amount and date of any deposits to or withdrawals from your account;
- the name, quantity and market value of the cash and securities held in your account as at the date of the statement.

The custodians that LTA uses to hold the accounts of our clients are registered and regulated investment trust companies or similar entities.

LTA also conducts periodic verifications of the custodians' statements against our asset and transaction records.

Portfolio holding statements are sent by LTA to clients shortly after the end of each calendar quarter. These statements will confirm the quantity and value of the assets that are held in your account at the end of each quarter.

LTA will provide additional performance reporting, asset allocation and other account information to clients on an as-needed basis.

Client Complaints

LTA is committed to resolving any client complaint fairly and in a timely manner. Please review Appendix A to this Disclosure Statement for a full description of our complaint policy.

Suitability of Investments

We have an obligation to ensure that all investment recommendations we make or investment decisions that we implement on your behalf are suitable for you, meaning that they are consistent with your financial circumstances, investment needs and objectives and your tolerance for risk. We do so through the applications of professional judgement and experience, and through objective assessment of the investment products that are available.

In order for us to identify investments that meet the suitability criteria, it is important that we have accurate and current information about you and your circumstances, needs, objectives and risk tolerance. A key source of the information we rely on is the Client Information Form. We ask our clients to carefully review the information in that form to ensure its accuracy, and to promptly inform our advising representatives of any material changes in the information that has been provided to us.

If you do not understand any of the terms used in our Client Information Form, our Investment Management Agreement or our other forms you can ask your advising representative for clarification.

Know-Your Client Information

LTA and its advising representatives are obliged to ensure that we have obtained adequate information about our clients to properly provide our advisory services. This is commonly referred to as Know-Your-Client (KYC) information, and it typically includes, among other things:

- Client name and address
- Contact information
- Birthdate
- Citizenship
- Social Insurance Number (for tax reporting purposes)
- Employment information
- Family status information
- Financial status, assets and income
- Investment needs and objectives
- Investment knowledge

- Risk tolerance

Aside from being required by various regulations, this information is important for developing and applying an investment strategy that is appropriate for you on an ongoing basis. We will check with you periodically to confirm that the KYC information we have is accurate, but we would ask that you promptly bring any significant changes in the KYC information we have on file to the attention of your advising representative.

Investment Benchmarks

An investment 'benchmark' is a point of reference against which the performance of a portfolio can be compared. For example, broad stock market indexes like the S&P/TSX Composite Index or the Dow Jones Industrial Index might be used as benchmarks against which investors compare the performance of stock portfolios.

LTA does not generally use benchmarks, and will not do so unless we can identify a benchmark that is validly comparable to the asset mix and risk characteristics of our client's portfolios. We will, however, try to provide clients with a 'best-available' benchmark for comparison purposes upon request.

Fairness of Allocation of Investment Opportunities

The principal criterion used by LTA in allocating investment opportunities amongst managed accounts is the suitability of proposed purchase and sale transactions as determined by the circumstances and needs of our clients as set out in each client's Portfolio Objectives and Profile. We do not afford priority in the allocation of investment opportunities on the basis of account size or the length of time our clients have been using our services.

When orders for more than one account are entered as a block, or aggregated, the resulting purchase or sale is allocated to participating accounts at the same price (or prices) and in proportion to the size of the initial order entered for their account, though in some circumstances we may take into consideration other relevant factors, including the proportion of the portfolio that the security represents, the weighting of the industry or security type in the portfolio and the cash reserve position in the portfolio.

Proxy Voting

LTA's policy regarding the voting of proxies for investments that we are held on behalf of clients is as follows:

1. LTA will not vote proxies on routine or non-contested governance issues such as appointment of auditors, election of directors or executive compensation. Our reasoning is that in most circumstances these issues have little or no impact upon the value of the underlying investments.

2. We will vote proxies on non-routine or contested issues such as corporate reorganizations, takeovers, mergers, spin-offs, capital restructurings or certain other issues that in our view are likely to have a material impact upon the value of our investment. In these situations, we will vote in favour of issues that we believe will result in the long-term maximization of the investment's value.

Clients that do not agree with this proxy voting policy are entitled to vote their proxies as they see fit. If you wish to exercise your right to vote proxies for the securities held in your portfolio please inform your advising representative in writing. On receipt of your instructions we will take steps to facilitate the future delivery of corporate communications and proxies to you directly.

Privacy and Confidentiality of Client Information

LTA is required to comply with provincial and federal privacy legislation. LTA and its personnel are obliged to protect and safeguard the personal information gathered from our clients and will only disclose that information to third parties with the express prior consent of the clients or in circumstances in which the law allows us, or compels us, to disclose the information.

We collect only the personal information that we believe is reasonably necessary for the proper performance of the services we provide to our clients and we will not sell or otherwise allow that personal information to be used by any other party, other than in the necessary course of providing the services expected by our clients. Relevant personal information may be shared with, for example, the trustees and custodians that provide services to our clients on behalf of LTA, our auditors and appropriate regulatory agencies (subject to certain legal criteria). Inquiries about LTA's privacy policy can be directed to your advising representative.

Referral Arrangements

LTA has not, and will not, enter into any client referral arrangements with any party where monetary compensations are considered. We do not pay referral fees to anyone as compensation for making client referrals to us nor will we accept referral fees from anyone as compensation for referring you to their services.

Data Privacy

LTA backs up its computers on Microsoft's cloud-based storage service known as OneDrive. The physical location of the servers used to store your data may be outside of Canada.

If our response to your complaint is delayed or unsatisfactory, you may be entitled to seek the assistance of the Ombudsman for Banking Services and Investments in resolving your complaint. This dispute resolution service is free and independent of LTA. The OBSI can look into your complaint if:

- we do not provide our decision within 90 days after you made your complaint, or
- we have informed you our decision and you are still unsatisfied; in which case you have 180 calendar days to bring your complaint to the OBSI.

There are limits on the amount of financial compensation that the OBSI can recommend. OBSI's service is available to clients of our firm without charge. The availability of the OBSI does not restrict your ability to take a complaint to a dispute resolution service of your choosing at your own expense, or to bring an action in court.
